State of Karnataka, Briefly, the facts are that the victim agreed to share a room at night with the two accused who committed rape on her. The Supreme Court held that "Considering the very young age of the accused persons and considering the circumstances under which there was every likelihood that they could not overcome the fit of passion and lost all sense of decency and morality and ultimately committed the offence of rape and also considering the fact that the incident had taken place long back and during course of the proceedings upto this Court, both of them had suffered disrepute and mental agony, we think that the ends of justice would be met if both the accused persons are awarded a lesser sentence."

The existing legal provisions are sufficiently strict and lesser punishment is provided for, only if so decided by the Court. Also there are adequate provisions in law for the courts to dispose of cases expeditiously.
